Whether you're drafting an academic paper, publishing a book, or preparing a research article, understanding how to cite sources accurately using the Chicago Manual of Style (CMS) 17th edition is essential. This article will walk you through the essentials of Chicago style citations, highlight its unique features, and provide clear examples to help you master referencing with confidence.

Understanding the Chicago Manual of Style 17th Edition Citation

The Chicago Manual of Style has been a leading authority in publishing for decades, and its 17th edition, published in 2017, reflects contemporary needs in citation and formatting. Unlike other citation styles such as APA or MLA, Chicago offers two distinct documentation systems: the Notes and Bibliography system, preferred in humanities, and the Author-Date system, commonly used in the sciences and social sciences.

Why Choose Chicago Manual of Style 17th Edition Citation?

One of the main reasons the Chicago style remains popular is its flexibility and thoroughness. It accommodates a wide range of source types—from traditional print books and journal articles to digital media and social platforms—making it suitable for today's diverse research landscape. Additionally, Chicago's detailed guidelines ensure clarity and consistency, which enhances the credibility of your work.

Two Documentation Systems Explained

- Notes and Bibliography System: This method uses footnotes or endnotes to cite sources within the text, along with a corresponding bibliography at the end. It's especially favored in disciplines like history, literature, and the arts.
- Author-Date System: This method incorporates parenthetical in-text citations paired with a reference list. It's often used in sciences and social sciences where concise citation is preferred.

Understanding which system to use depends largely on your discipline or publisher's requirements, but both are thoroughly detailed in the 17th edition.

Formatting Citations in Chicago Manual of Style 17th Edition

When dealing with the Chicago Manual of Style 17th edition citation, formatting is everything. The guide provides clear instructions on how to structure citations for different source types, ensuring every reference is accurate and uniform.

Books

In the Notes and Bibliography system, a book citation in a footnote looks like this:

1. Firstname Lastname, Title of Book (Place of Publication: Publisher, Year), page number.

Example:

1. Jane Austen, Pride and Prejudice (New York: Penguin Classics, 2002), 45.

In the bibliography, the entry appears as:

Lastname, Firstname. Title of Book. Place of Publication: Publisher, Year.

Example:

Austen, Jane. Pride and Prejudice. New York: Penguin Classics, 2002.

For the Author-Date system, the in-text citation is:

(Lastname Year, page number)

Example:

(Austen 2002, 45)

And the reference list entry mirrors the bibliography format but arranges elements for clarity.

Journal Articles

Chicago Manual of Style 17th edition citation for journal articles requires attention to detail, especially with volume and issue numbers.

Footnote example:

2. Firstname Lastname, "Title of Article," Title of Journal volume number, no. issue number (Year): page numbers.

Example:

2. John Smith, "Exploring Modern Art," Art Review 15, no. 3 (2018): 122-135.

Bibliography example:

Lastname, Firstname. "Title of Article." Title of Journal volume number, no. issue number (Year): page range.

Example:

Smith, John. "Exploring Modern Art." Art Review 15, no. 3 (2018): 122-135.

In the Author-Date system, the in-text citation is:

(Lastname Year, page number)

Example:

(Smith 2018, 130)

Reference list entry:

Lastname, Firstname. Year. "Title of Article." Title of Journal volume number (issue number): page range.

Example:

Smith, John. 2018. "Exploring Modern Art." Art Review 15 (3): 122-135.

Special Considerations in Chicago Manual of Style 17th Edition

Citation

Electronic Sources and URLs

With the rise of digital publishing, the Chicago Manual of Style 17th edition citation includes updated guidance for citing online materials. When referencing websites, online articles, or e-books, it's important to include the URL or DOI (Digital Object Identifier) and the date you accessed the source if the content is likely to change over time.

Example of an online article in Notes and Bibliography:

3. Firstname Lastname, "Title of Webpage," Name of Website, last modified Month Day, Year, URL.

Example:

3. Emily Johnson, "Guide to Urban Gardening," Green Living, last modified June 10, 2020, <https://www.greenliving.com/urban-gardening>.

In the bibliography:

Lastname, Firstname. "Title of Webpage." Name of Website. Last modified Month Day, Year. URL.

Example:

Johnson, Emily. "Guide to Urban Gardening." Green Living. Last modified June 10, 2020. <https://www.greenliving.com/urban-gardening>.

Handling Multiple Authors

When you encounter sources with multiple authors, Chicago Manual of Style 17th edition citation provides clear rules:

- For up to three authors, list all names in the bibliography.
- For four or more authors, list the first author followed by "et al." in the notes; in the bibliography, list all authors if preferred or use "et al." after the first author.

Footnote example for three authors:

4. Michael Brown, Sarah Green, and Thomas Lee, Environmental Policies Today (Chicago: University Press, 2019), 67.

Bibliography example:

Brown, Michael, Sarah Green, and Thomas Lee. Environmental Policies Today. Chicago: University Press, 2019.

Quotations and Page Numbers

One of the advantages of the Notes and Bibliography system is its detailed referencing of specific pages, especially when quoting or referring to particular passages. Always include page numbers in your citations to help readers locate the exact source.

For example:

5. Lisa Martin, "The Evolution of Jazz," Music Quarterly 22, no. 1 (2017): 45.

Or in the Author-Date system:

(Martin 2017, 45)

This update addresses the challenges of source attribution in an era where digital content can often be transient or lack standard publication details.

Notes and Bibliography vs. Author-Date: Choosing the Right Citation Style

The Chicago Manual of Style 17th edition citation distinguishes itself by supporting two distinct systems:

- Notes and Bibliography: Utilizes footnotes or endnotes alongside a bibliography. This style is particularly useful for works that require detailed commentary or explanation alongside source citation. It is favored in the humanities for its thoroughness and readability.

- Versus MLA: MLA (Modern Language Association) is widely used in literature and language studies but lacks the extensive flexibility for non-traditional sources that Chicago provides, especially in its 17th edition updates.
- Flexibility: Chicago's dual system approach offers users the choice to adapt citations to the needs of their discipline, unlike some single-method styles.

chicago manual of style 17th edition citation: The Micro-historian's Guide to Research, Evidence, & Conclusions Reginald W. Bacon, 2019-09-18 The Micro-Historian's Guide to Research, Evidence, & Conclusions imparts useful guidance to motivated historians, genealogists, special interest researchers, and local history enthusiasts. As long-buried sources become available via the internet, more regular folks without a Ph.D. in history are joining the fun of information-gathering and shining new light on under-explored history - yet often with no foundation of method. The author answers the call with this volume, "paying forward" the guidance received from long-ago mentors as well as from present-day historians and archivists. Topics include research planning & execution, evaluation of evidence, formulation of conclusions, and the crafting of a summary narrative. Each topic is enriched by practical examples from the author's experience. The aim is to help the new practitioner build a foundation of research skills that leads to evidence-based conclusions. The author's perspective of experience - as a disciplined researcher, but also with roots as a no-nonsense old-school newspaper reporter - occasionally prompts a mild tease of the buttoned-down genealogy proof standard, or conversely, a deflating poke at flabby interpretation ... and moribund academic writing ... wherever it may fester. The Micro-Historian's Guide to Research, Evidence, & Conclusions draws theory from dozens of history, genealogy, historiography, and research giants through the ages. The book also pays tribute to that long-ago cigar-chomping newspaper editor who admonished a young reporter: "Yer mother sez she loves ya'? You still gotta check it out!"

chicago manual of style 17th edition citation: Understanding Salafism Yasir Qadhi, 2025-06-12 The Salafi movement invokes fear and dread in outsiders who treat Salafism as synonymous with religious extremism. For Salafis themselves, it's a jealously guarded title, always in danger of dilution. Salafism has changed the face of Islam; its ideas reach far outside its own ranks. Yet popular portrayals never go beyond hackneyed stereotypes. In Understanding Salafism, Dr Yasir Qadhi delves into the origins of the movement, from the earliest debates in Islam to Salafism today, in both the Western and Islamic worlds. In an analysis covering Salafism in the Middle East, Europe, the United States and Africa, he illuminates Salafism's theological ideas, the debates within Salafism about political participation, and its relationship to other schools in Sunni Islam. ----- Table of Contents List of Figures Preface Conventions 1 Introduction: A Bird's Eye View of Salafism 2 A Comprehensive History of Salafi Thought: From its Origins to Modernity 3 Wahhabism and Salafism 4 Salafism and Islamism: A Case Study of the Muslim Brotherhood 5 The Phenomenon of Jihadi-Salafism 6 Global Salafism in the Contemporary World Epilogue Notes Bibliography Index chicago manual of style 17th edition citation: New Techniques for Proving Plagiarism M. V. Dougherty, 2024-05-21 This book demonstrates that the principles of textual criticism—borrowed from the fields of classics and medieval studies—have a valuable application for plagiarism investigations. Plagiarists share key features with medieval scribes who worked in scriptoriums and produced copies of manuscripts. Both kinds of copyists—scribes and plagiarists—engage in similar processes, and they commit distinctive copying errors. When committed by plagiarists, these copying errors have probative value for making determinations that a text is copied, and hence, unoriginal. To show the efficacy of the newly proposed techniques for proving plagiarism, case studies are drawn from philosophy, theology, and canon law.

chicago manual of style 17th edition citation: Lore and Verse Yue Zhang, 2022-01-01 Lore and Verse is the first English-language book dedicated entirely to studying poems on history (yongshi shi) in premodern China. Focusing on works by poets from the entire range of early medieval China (220–589), Yue Zhang explores how history was disseminated and interpreted through poetry, as well as how and why certain historical figures were commemorated in poetry. In writing poems on history, poets retrospectively crafted their own identities through their celebration of historical figures, and they prospectively fortified a continuous lineage for transmitting their values and reputation to future generations. This continuous tradition of cultural memory informs a poet's reception of historical figures, which in turn shapes that tradition through further intertextual connections. Lore and Verse questions the sweeping generalization of early medieval Chinese poetry as consisting mainly of exuberant images and an ornamental style—an inaccurate characterization repeated by later historians and literary critics—and it provides translations, close readings, and analyses of selected poems on history that will be useful for students, instructors, and general readers interested in premodern Chinese literature and culture.
