The Story Behind Seven Blind Mice Ed Young

The tale of the seven blind mice is a traditional Indian fable that teaches a profound lesson about perception and understanding. In the original story, seven blind mice each encounter a different part of an elephant and draw vastly different conclusions about what the elephant might be, leading to a moral about partial knowledge and the importance of seeing the bigger picture.

Ed Young's version stays true to this timeless message but infuses it with his unique artistic flair. His adaptation is known for its minimalist yet expressive illustrations that use bold colors and textures to bring the story to life. The narrative is simplified enough for young readers but rich in meaning, making it a valuable tool for teaching critical thinking and empathy.

Turning the traditional, highbrow notion of art cinema on its head, Theorizing Art Cinemas takes a flexible, inclusive approach that views art cinema as a predictable way of valuing movies as "art" movies—an activity that has occurred across film history and across film subcultures—rather than as a traditional genre in the sense of a distinct set of forms or a closed historical period or movement. David Andrews opens with a history of the art cinema "super-genre" from the early days of silent movies to the postwar European invasion that brought Italian Neorealism, the French New Wave, and the New German Cinema to the forefront and led to the development of auteur theory. He then discusses the mechanics of art cinema, from art houses, film festivals, and the academic discipline of film studies, to the audiences and distribution systems for art cinema as a whole. This wide-ranging approach allows Andrews to develop a theory that encompasses both the high and low ends of art cinema in all of its different aspects, including world cinema, avant-garde films, experimental films, and cult cinema. All of these art cinemas, according to Andrews, share an emphasis on quality, authorship, and anticommercialism, whether the film in question is film festival favorite or a midnight movie.
