PhD in Peace and Conflict Studies: Exploring Paths to Global Harmony

phd in peace and conflict studies is an academic pursuit that delves into understanding the complexities behind conflicts, violence, and the mechanisms that foster peace in societies worldwide. For those passionate about making a meaningful impact on global issues, this doctoral program offers a unique blend of theory, research, and practical strategies aimed at resolving disputes and promoting sustainable peace. Whether you envision a career in academia, international organizations, policy-making, or grassroots activism, a PhD in this field equips you with the tools to analyze the root causes of conflicts and contribute to lasting solutions.

What Is a PhD in Peace and Conflict Studies?

At its core, a PhD in peace and conflict studies is an interdisciplinary doctoral program that combines insights from political science, sociology, psychology, international relations, and ethics. Its primary goal is to cultivate scholars and practitioners who can critically examine the dynamics of conflict and peacebuilding across local, national, and global contexts. Unlike degrees that focus solely on war or diplomacy, this field emphasizes understanding violence in all its forms—structural, cultural, and direct—and exploring peaceful alternatives.

Doctoral candidates typically engage in rigorous research, often involving case studies, fieldwork, or comparative analysis of conflict zones, peace processes, and reconciliation efforts. The outcome is a dissertation that adds original knowledge to the discipline, often influencing policy or practice in conflict resolution and peacebuilding sectors.

Why Choose a PhD in Peace and Conflict Studies?

If you're driven by a desire to understand why conflicts erupt and how they can be peacefully managed or prevented, this doctoral program offers a compelling path. Here are some reasons why pursuing a PhD in peace and conflict studies can be a transformative decision:

1. Interdisciplinary Approach

The program draws on diverse academic disciplines, allowing you to develop a holistic understanding of conflicts. This approach prepares you to tackle complex problems from multiple angles—be it psychological trauma of war survivors, socioeconomic inequalities fueling unrest, or the role of international law in peacekeeping.

2. Contribution to Real-World Solutions

Unlike purely theoretical programs, peace and conflict studies often emphasize applied research. Many PhD candidates collaborate with NGOs, government agencies, or international bodies, conducting field research that directly informs peacebuilding initiatives or conflict prevention policies.

3. Expanding Career Opportunities

Graduates with a PhD in peace and conflict studies find opportunities in academia, international organizations like the United Nations, think tanks, policy institutes, and non-governmental organizations focused on human rights, development, and mediation.

Core Areas of Study in a PhD Program

The curriculum for a doctorate in this field is designed to equip students with comprehensive knowledge and advanced research skills. While specific courses vary by institution, several core themes are common:

Conflict Analysis and Resolution

Understanding the origins and dynamics of conflict is essential. Students explore theories explaining how conflicts emerge, escalate, and possibly de-escalate, alongside techniques for negotiation, mediation, and arbitration.

Peacebuilding and Reconciliation

This area focuses on post-conflict strategies aimed at rebuilding societies. It includes studying transitional justice, trauma healing, community engagement, and policy frameworks that support long-term peace.

International Relations and Security Studies

Given that many conflicts have cross-border implications, students examine the role of international actors, peacekeeping operations, and security frameworks in maintaining global stability.

Human Rights and Ethics

Peace studies are closely linked with human rights principles. The program encourages critical reflection on ethical dilemmas in conflict situations and the protection of vulnerable populations.

Research Methods

Strong emphasis is placed on qualitative and quantitative research methodologies, including ethnography, surveys, interviews, and data analysis, which are crucial for producing credible doctoral dissertations.

Choosing the Right Program and University

Selecting a PhD program that aligns with your research interests and career goals is vital. Here are some factors to consider:

- Faculty Expertise: Investigate professors' research areas to ensure mentorship matches your focus, whether it's peacebuilding in post-conflict zones or conflict theory.
- Research Resources: Access to archives, fieldwork opportunities, and partnerships with international organizations can enrich your studies.
- Program Structure: Some programs offer more flexibility or interdisciplinary collaborations, which might appeal if you want to tailor your research.
- Funding and Scholarships: Doctoral studies can be costly, so look for institutions providing stipends, assistantships, or grants.
- Alumni Network and Career Support: Programs with strong professional networks can help open doors post-graduation.

Tips for Success in a PhD in Peace and Conflict Studies

Embarking on a doctoral journey is challenging but rewarding. Here are some practical tips to help you thrive:

1. Develop a Clear Research Focus Early

Peace and conflict studies cover broad ground. Narrowing your dissertation topic early helps maintain clarity and depth in your research.

2. Engage in Fieldwork When Possible

Direct exposure to conflict-affected areas or peacebuilding projects enriches your understanding and lends authenticity to your work.

3. Build Interdisciplinary Connections

Collaborate with peers and faculty from different disciplines to gain diverse perspectives and enhance your analytical skills.

4. Stay Updated on Current Global Issues

Conflicts and peace processes evolve rapidly. Keeping abreast of contemporary events ensures your research remains relevant.

5. Publish and Present Your Work

Sharing your findings through academic journals and conferences not only builds your reputation but also contributes to the field's collective knowledge.

Career Paths After Completing a PhD

A doctorate in peace and conflict studies opens doors to a variety of impactful careers. Here are some pathways graduates explore:

- Academic Roles: Teaching and conducting research at universities worldwide.
- Policy Advising: Working with governments or international bodies to design conflict prevention strategies.
- International Development: Engaging with NGOs or multilateral organizations on peacebuilding and humanitarian projects.
- Mediation and Negotiation: Serving as facilitators in conflict resolution processes.
- Human Rights Advocacy: Promoting justice and accountability in post-conflict contexts.

This diversity reflects the interdisciplinary and applied nature of the field, allowing graduates to tailor their careers according to their passions and expertise.

Final Thoughts on Pursuing a PhD in Peace and Conflict Studies

Choosing to pursue a PhD in peace and conflict studies is more than an academic decision—it's a commitment to understanding and transforming the world's most challenging issues. The journey is intellectually demanding but offers the rewarding opportunity to contribute to peace and justice on a global scale. With the right program, mentorship, and dedication, your doctoral work can become a catalyst for change, helping societies move toward reconciliation and coexistence. Whether you aim to shape policy, educate future leaders, or engage directly in peacebuilding efforts, this field provides a powerful platform to make a lasting impact.

PhD in Peace and Conflict Studies: Exploring Advanced Scholarship in Conflict Resolution phd in peace and conflict studies represents a pinnacle of academic pursuit in understanding the complexities of conflict, peacebuilding, and social justice. As global conflicts persist and new challenges emerge—from interstate wars to ethnic strife and environmental disputes—the demand for expert scholars and practitioners in peace and conflict resolution intensifies. This doctoral degree equips candidates with the theoretical frameworks, empirical research skills, and applied methodologies necessary to analyze, interpret, and influence the processes that underpin both conflict and peace.

The interdisciplinary nature of a phd in peace and conflict studies draws on political science, sociology, international relations, psychology, and law, positioning graduates to contribute meaningfully to academia, policy-making, and international diplomacy. This article provides a comprehensive examination of the phd in peace and conflict studies, its academic structure, research focus, career trajectories, and the current landscape of this field.

Understanding the Scope of a PhD in Peace and Conflict Studies

Peace and conflict studies emerged as a distinct academic discipline in the mid-20th century, motivated by the aftermath of World War II and the rise of the Cold War. Today, a phd in peace and conflict studies continues to evolve, focusing on multidimensional aspects of conflict—ranging from violent confrontations to structural violence, and from micro-level interpersonal disputes to macro-level international crises.

A doctoral program in this field typically requires rigorous coursework, comprehensive examinations, and a significant original research dissertation. Students engage deeply with theories of conflict transformation, negotiation, mediation, and reconciliation, alongside methodologies such as qualitative interviews, quantitative data analysis, and case study research. The program often encourages cross-regional and cross-cultural perspectives, emphasizing the globalized nature of peace and conflict dynamics.

Curriculum and Research Focus Areas

PhD candidates usually explore various thematic areas, including but not limited to:

- Conflict resolution theories and practices
- Peacebuilding and post-conflict reconstruction
- Human rights and social justice
- Security studies and international relations
- Ethnic and religious conflicts
- Gender and conflict
- Environmental peace and conflict

These thematic pillars allow scholars to tailor their research to specific interests, often contributing new knowledge to pressing global issues such as refugee crises, terrorism, or climate-induced conflicts.

Academic and Professional Advantages of Pursuing a PhD in Peace and Conflict Studies

The academic rigor and interdisciplinary approach of a phd in peace and conflict studies provide several distinct advantages:

1. Advanced Research Skills and Critical Analysis

Doctoral candidates hone their ability to critically assess complex conflict scenarios, drawing on diverse theoretical perspectives and empirical data. This analytical depth is essential for producing impactful scholarship or policy recommendations.

2. Expertise in Conflict Resolution and Peacebuilding

Graduates possess specialized knowledge in conflict transformation mechanisms, enabling them to design and implement peacebuilding initiatives in governmental, non-governmental, and international organizations.

3. Opportunities for Global Engagement

Many programs encourage international fieldwork or collaborations, allowing scholars to immerse themselves in real-world conflict environments and engage with communities affected by violence.

4. Diverse Career Pathways

A phd in peace and conflict studies opens doors to academia as professors or researchers, policy advisors in think tanks, analysts in international organizations such as the United Nations, or practitioners in peace NGOs.

Comparative Overview: PhD in Peace and Conflict Studies vs. Related Doctorates

While peace and conflict studies intersect with fields such as international relations, political science, and sociology, the phd in peace and conflict studies is uniquely focused on conflict dynamics and peace processes. Unlike a general international relations doctorate, which may emphasize diplomacy, security policies, or global governance broadly, peace and conflict studies delve deeper into the root causes of conflict and sustainable peace strategies.

Similarly, compared to political science, this doctoral program prioritizes conflict transformation and resolution over electoral politics or institutional analysis. Compared to sociology, it concentrates more on conflict and peace at interpersonal, community, and international levels rather than broader social theory.

Program Delivery and Duration

Typically, a phd in peace and conflict studies requires 3 to 6 years of full-time study, depending on the country and institution. The journey usually begins with two to three years of coursework, covering foundational theories and research methods, followed by comprehensive exams and dissertation research.

Many universities now offer flexible or hybrid formats, including part-time study options and online components, to accommodate professionals already engaged in peace work or related fields.

Challenges and Considerations for Prospective Candidates

Pursuing a phd in peace and conflict studies involves navigating several challenges:

- Intellectual Complexity: The interdisciplinary nature demands a broad base of knowledge and the ability to integrate diverse methodologies.
- Emotional Demands: Research topics often involve sensitive subjects such as violence, trauma, and human suffering, requiring emotional resilience.
- Funding and Resources: Securing scholarships or grants can be competitive, and field research in conflict zones may present logistical and safety challenges.
- Career Uncertainty: While the degree offers diverse career paths, academic positions remain limited and competitive, making alternative career planning essential.

Prospective students should carefully assess their long-term goals and seek programs that align with their research interests and professional aspirations.

Notable Institutions Offering PhD Programs in Peace and Conflict Studies

Several universities worldwide are renowned for their doctoral programs in this field, including:

1. University of Notre Dame (Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies, USA)
2. University of Bradford (Department of Peace Studies, UK)
3. University of Oslo (Centre for Peace Studies, Norway)
4. University of Queensland (School of Political Science and International Studies, Australia)
5. Institute of Peace Research and Security Policy at the University of Hamburg (Germany)

These institutions offer strong academic mentorship, access to extensive research resources, and opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration.

The Future of Peace and Conflict Studies at the Doctoral Level

As new global challenges emerge—including cyber conflicts, climate change-induced disputes, and the rise of populism—the field of peace and conflict studies continues to adapt. Doctoral research increasingly incorporates technology-driven conflict analysis, artificial intelligence applications in peacebuilding, and intersectional approaches that integrate marginalized voices.

Moreover, the field is witnessing a growing emphasis on applied research, where scholars not only analyze conflicts but actively participate in shaping policy and peace initiatives. This trend underscores the evolving role of the phd in peace and conflict studies as both an academic qualification and a practical tool for global change.

The phd in peace and conflict studies remains a critical academic pursuit for those committed to understanding and resolving the underlying causes of conflict while fostering sustainable peace. Its blend of theory, research, and practice equips scholars to navigate the complexities of an increasingly interconnected and conflict-prone world.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Understanding Peace Research Kristine Hoglund, Magnus Oberg, 2011-03 This textbook provides a comprehensive overview of different methods and sources of information-gathering for peace and conflict students and researchers, as well as the challenges presented by such work. Research on conflict-ridden societies carries special challenges for the collection and evaluation of information about the conflict and its actors. First, due to the nature of information emerging, incentives to misrepresent and propaganda is common. News coverage is sometimes poor and reporting is often incomplete, selective and biased. Second, the sensitivity of the topic and the questions posed in peace and conflict research means that access to and the security of informants can be a problem. Peace and conflict research as a discipline encompasses a number of different approaches for obtaining empirical information which serve as a basis for analyzing various research topics. This book provides a comprehensive overview of different methods and sources of information-gathering for students and researchers, as well as the challenges presented by such work. It offers: tools for evaluating sources and information suggestions on where different types of information can be found advice on using different types of sources, including news reports and written narratives practical guidelines for constructing large-scale datasets insights and guidelines for comparative fieldwork, in-depth interviews, focus groups, and surveys reflection and discussion on important ethical concerns in peace research This book will be of much interest for students and researchers of peace and conflict studies, conflict resolution, war and conflict studies, development studies, security studies and IR, as well as for NGO workers/researchers. Kristine Höglund is Associate Professor at the Department of Peace and Conflict Research, Uppsala University. She has a PhD in Peace and Conflict Research from Uppsala University Sweden (2004). She is author of Peacemaking in the Shadow of Violence. Magnus Öberg is Associate Professor at the Department of Peace and Conflict Research, Uppsala University, and Associate Editor of the Journal of Peace Research (since 2006). phd in peace and conflict studies: Multidisciplinary Perspectives on Peace and Conflict Research Francisco Ferrándiz, Antonius C. G. M. Robben, 2007-01-01 This book represents the scholarly work of the network «European Doctorate Enhancement in Peace and Conflict Studies» (EDEN), a broad training and research network linking scholars, departments and universities interested in thinking and rethinking proposals, concepts and methodologies for the expanding field of Peace and Conflict Studies from different disciplines such as law, history, sociology, anthropology, international relations, and political science. The Network has been functioning since the year 1996 and aims mainly to develop the level and quality of the discussion, to enhance the collaboration and coordination within the European academic community —encompassing the diversity of theoretical approaches in the area—, to promote intellectual understanding, and to create an appropriate institutional infrastructure and consistent financial support for academic research. The Network has also been consistently fostering the exchange and mobility of graduate students through summer Intensive Programmes and Marie Curie Fellowships so as to develop a critical mass of inter-disciplinary comparative research expertise, providing access to tutorials, methodology courses, and significant human and practical resources for a better understanding of research questions, conceptual debates, and methodological challenges. The final purpose of the network is to generate sustained debate and exchange among policy makers, NGO's, media professionals and academics, in order to facilitate a scholarly dialogue and ongoing feedback between research, knowledge dissemination and policy.

phd in peace and conflict studies: The Crises of Postcoloniality in Africa Omeje, Kenneth, 2017-05-05 The Crises of Postcoloniality in Africa is an assemblage of transdisciplinary essays that offer a spirited reflection on the debate and phenomenon of postcoloniality in Africa, including the changing patterns and ramifications of problems, challenges and opportunities associated with it. A key conceptual rhythm that runs through the various chapters of the book is that, far from being demised, postcoloniality is still firmly embedded in Africa, manifesting itself in both blatant and insidious forms. Among the important themes covered in the book include the concepts of postcolonialism, postcoloniality, and neocolonialism; Africa's precolonial formations and the impact of colonialism; the enduring patterns of colonial legacies in Africa; the persistent contradictions between African indigenous institutions and western versions of modernity; the unravelling of the postcolonial state and issues of armed conflict, conflict intervention and peacebuilding; postcolonial imperialism in Africa and the US-led global war on terror, the historical and postcolonial contexts of gender relations in Africa, as well as pan-Africanism and regionalist approaches to redressing the crises of postcoloniality.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Extractive Economies and Conflicts in the Global South Kenneth Omeje, 2017-11-28 The majority of developing countries in the Global South are evidently rich in natural resources, but paradoxically blighted by excruciating poverty and conflicts. This paradox of deprivation and war in the midst of plenteous resources has been the subject of great debate in international political economy in contemporary history. This book contributes to the debate by examining the underlying structures, actors and contexts of rentier politics and how they often produce and aggravate conflicts in the various extractive economies and regions of the Global South. The book critically explores the theories of rentier economies and natural resource conflicts, as well as the practical ramifications of rentier politics in the Global South with all their resonance for political economy and security in the Global North.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Critical Issues in Peace and Conflict Studies Thomas Matyók, Jessica Senehi, Sean Byrne, 2011-05-19 Peace and Conflict Studies (PCS) includes scholars and practitioners throughout the world working in peace studies, conflict analysis and resolution, conflict management, appropriate dispute resolution, and peace and justice studies. They come to the PCSfield with a diversity of ideas, approaches, disciplinary roots, and topic areas, which speaks to the complexity, breadth, and depth needed to apply and take account of conflict dynamics and the goal of peace. Yet, a number of key concerns and dilemmas continue to challenge the field. Critical Issues in Peace and Conflict Studies: Theory, Practice, and Pedagogy, edited by Thomas Matyók, Jessica Senehi, and Sean Byrne, is a collection of essays that explores a number of these issues, providing a means by which academics, students, and practitioners can develop various methods to confront the complexity of contemporary conflicts. Critical Issues in Peace and Conflict Studies discusses the emerging field of PCS, and suggests a framework for the future development of the field and the education of its practitioners and academics. The book has a wide audience targeting students at the undergraduate, graduate, and post-graduate levels. It also extends to those working in and leading community conflict resolution efforts as well as humanitarian aid workers.

phd in peace and conflict studies: The Sage Handbook of Peace and Conflict Studies Maia Carter Hallward, Ji Eun Kim, Cécile Mouly, Timothy Seidel, Zubairu Wai, 2025-06-07 The Sage Handbook of Peace and Conflict Studies offers a comprehensive exploration of the complexities of violence, conflict, and peace from a global, interdisciplinary perspective. The handbook addresses the traditional Western-centric approach while emphasizing the need to integrate Global South perspectives to create a more inclusive and transformative understanding of peace and conflict. While important voices in peace and conflict studies have long stressed the need to not only address direct violence but also structural and cultural one, certain strands of the field have upheld conservative knowledge production and reinforced unequal power structures. This volume seeks to challenge these biases by foregrounding critical and decolonial approaches that emphasize gender, race, culture, global history, and political economy. Its diverse chapters invite us to question mainstream assumptions and promote a broader, more inclusive analysis of peace and conflict. The handbook explores the evolution of the field, highlighting the impact of historical events and the role of oppositional knowledge in political change. It offers a critical overview of theoretical approaches, emphasizing reflexivity, inclusivity, and the importance of local actors in peace and conflict dynamics. Additionally, it examines how cultural and disciplinary assumptions shape peacebuilding and conflict transformation, and it critiques traditional global narratives on issues like governance, climate change, and human rights. Finally, the handbook presents real-world case studies that integrate themes of decoloniality, race, gender, and power inequalities across diverse global contexts. By centering the Global South and integrating interdisciplinary perspectives, this handbook provides valuable insights for scholars and practitioners committed to fostering a more equitable and just world.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Mediation and Liberal Peacebuilding Mikael Eriksson, Roland Kostić, 2013-02-15 This book offers a state-of-the-art examination of peacemaking, looking at its theoretical assumptions, empirical applications and its consequences. Despite the wealth of research on external interventions and practices of Western peacebuilding, many scholars tend to rely on findings in the so-called 'post-agreement' phase of interventions. As a result, most mainstream peacebuilding literature pays limited or no attention to the linkages that exist between mediation practices in the negotiation phase and processes in the post-peace agreement phase of intervention. By linking the motives and practices of interveners during negotiation and implementation phases into a more integrated theoretical framework, this book makes a unique contribution to the on-going debate on the so-called Western 'liberal' models of peacebuilding. Drawing upon in-depth case-studies from various different regions of the world including Bosnia-Herzegovina, Kosovo, Afghanistan, Sudan, Ivory Coast, Senegal and Sierra Leone, this innovative volume examines a variety of political motives behind third party interventions, thus challenging the very founding concept of mediation literature. This book will of much interest to students of peacebuilding, statebuilding, peacemaking, war and conflict studies, security studies and IR in general.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Armed Banditry in Nigeria John Sunday Ojo, Folahanmi Aina, Samuel Oyewole, 2024-02-22 In Nigeria, armed banditry has emerged as a contemporary threat to national security. Commentators and scholars have repeatedly pointed to overlapping foci such as herders-farmers' conflicts, warlordism, ungoverned spaces, transnational criminal networks, and the proliferation of Small Arms and Light Weapons (SALW) from Libya as dynamics influencing the current security dilemma in Nigeria. The emergence of armed banditry has triggered the prevalence of everyday killings, kidnapping for ransom, property destruction, and cattle rustling. However, the group's origin remains obscure, while its objectives and organizational structure are fuzzy. This book aims to unravel the evolution, dynamics, and trajectories of armed banditry in Nigeria. As it explores the activities of armed banditry in Nigeria, the debate will focus on its historical context, socio-economic consequences, transnational dimensions, and the response to armed banditry in Nigeria. Furthermore, the book will explore whether the scourge of armed banditry represents a new terrorist organization with a distinct ideological orientation (if at all) or another non-state armed group creating and profiting from a criminal economy through the reign of terror. In response to the increasing concern for the criminal activities of armed banditry in Nigeria, the book anticipates unpacking its emerging trends and operational nomenclature.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Peace Education for Violence Prevention in Fragile African Societies Maphosa, Sylvester B., Keasley, Alphonse, 2019-02-10 Though conflicts among (African) nations diminished at the end of the last millennium, the need for peace remains a perennial concern for African citizens within their communities and countries. Once again, Maphosa and Keasley have engaged a collection of scholar practitioners to address the query 'What's Going to Make a Difference in Contemporary Peace Education around Africa?' The contributing authors draw from daily headlines as well as African literature to unearth twenty-first century quandaries with which educators in formal and informal contexts are called upon to grapple. The 'What's Going to Make a Difference' authors offer insights to educators, peace education practitioners and parents for everyday living. The authors probe the wisdom of the recent and ancient past and bring forth pearls for contemporary moments. All in discerning effort to respond to the guiding question, the editors and their contributing colleagues deliver a compelling set of revelations for Making a Difference in Peace Education for African and world citizens.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Handbook of Africa's International Relations Tim Murithi, 2013-09-05 Africa's international relations have often been defined and oriented by the dominant international and geopolitical agendas of the day. This new volume in the Routledge International Handbooks series examines the impact of globalization and contemporary international political changes, including the development of the African Union, on Africa's international relations. This timely book will engage with and analyse a wide range of issues, with chapters written by experts on a variety of themes.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Women on the Pilgrimage to Peace Anna Hamling, 2024-01-09 This interdisciplinary volume examines intersecting journeys of women from around the globe on their pilgrimages to peace. It consists of twelve chapters that discuss theoretical and practical issues related to the study of peace. The focus of this volume is the successful movement from war to building peace through nonviolent means. It is a study of how and why contemporary tactics of a nonviolent approach have proved effective. International scholars from Ukraine, India, Lebanon, and the US, amongst others, explore the ways in which journeys towards peace have evolved amid the twenty-first century's growing social changes in their respective countries. This collection will provide a valuable resource for those researching and practising peace and conflict resolution studies, sociology, comparative cultural studies, history, and international development studies.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Tourism, Progress and Peace Omar Moufakkir, Ian Kelly, 2010 Tourism has the potential to contribute to world peace, and through appropriate management, to address current realities such as globalization, migration, conflicts, prejudices and poverty. By providing a range of international perspectives and case studies, this book discusses the interrelation between peace, conflict resolution and tourism, the role of industry and the role of the individual, and tourism as a catalyst for change and development. Exploring the ideas that there is more to peace than the absence of war and that there is more to tourism than economic interests, this book is the first of its kind and an essential resource for researchers, students and policymakers in tourism and related subjects.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Building Peace from Within B. Maphosa, Laura DeLuca, 2014-03-07 This book seeks to examine how successful models of building 'peace from within' in the African context function. It draws emerging lessons to provide critical recommendations on policy, practice and academia - our primary audience. While there are numerous examples of failures of conflict resolution in Africa, shown by intractable conflict axes, less attention is paid to successes. While acknowledging the challenges that exist, this edited volume provides positive examples of building peace from within in fragile contexts through many forms of initiatives and actions at different levels: community-based (through individual and/or collective local peace initiatives), government (through ministries and/or departments), and regional (through external and/or multilateral infrastructure for peace). As a guiding principle the notion of building peace from within draws from the idea of community regeneration, which describes voluntary and peaceful activities of grassroots actors that reflect their broader interests of building peaceful communities and existence.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Peace and Conflict Resolution in Africa Ernest E. Uwazie, 2019-01-15 This publication is the product of the 25th Annual Africa and Diaspora Conference in 2016, organized by the Center for African Peace and Conflict Resolution at California State University, Sacramento, on the theme of "Peace and Conflict Resolution in Africa 25 Years Later: Lessons, Best Practices and Opportunities". It brings together reflections on both historical and contemporary or recurring conflicts in Africa, especially on issues of ethno-religious conflicts, corruption, land, and leadership. The chapters include case studies and some theoretical perspectives on the persistent search for the right size and scope of visioning and programming on peace and conflict resolution in Africa. Understandably, this collection of ideas, thoughts and proposals will resonate with the field of Peace and Conflict Studies. Arguably, Africa is "rising" in the 21st century, with declining violent conflicts and an increase in stable democracies and economies. However, there are still the significant challenges of extremism, climate change, poor governance, ineffective leadership, widening wealth gaps, and weak institutions of moderation. The essays collected here also document areas of progress in legitimizing democracy and conceptualizing social justice, and suggest the need for building the next generation of peace leaders in Africa.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Handbook of Conflict Analysis and Resolution Dennis J.D. Sandole, Sean Byrne, Ingrid Sandole-Staroste, Jessica Senehi, 2008-07-31 This major Handbook comprises cutting-edge essays from leading scholars in the field of Conflict Analysis and Resolution (CAR). The volume provides a comprehensive overview of the core concepts, theories, approaches, processes, and intervention designs in the field. The central theme is the value of multidisciplinary approaches to the analysis and phd in peace and conflict studies: Methodological Advances in Research on Social Movements, Conflict, and Change Thomas V. Maher, Eric W. Schoon, 2023-07-12 Now that we are almost a quarter of the way into the 21st century, the field of sociology is in need of research like this which explores methods for studying contentious politics in the context of broader social changes to peacebuilding, armed conflicts, and social movements.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Conflict Transformation, Peacebuilding, and Storytelling Laura E. Reimer, Katerina Standish, Chuck Thiessen, 2018-09-15 This book serves as an important link between conflict resolution practice and education by providing research from the unique perspective and approach of the Arthur V. Mauro Centre for Peace and Justice, one of the world's leading academic programs for PACS research: storytelling, peacebuilding, and conflict transformation. Each chapter presents original research in critical issues in the field of PACS, and provides recent research for the future development of the field and the education of its practitioners and academics. The book has a wide audience targeting students at the undergraduate, graduate, and post-graduate levels. It also extends to those working in and leading community conflict resolution efforts as well as humanitarian aid workers. Exploring the issues facing the field provides a means by which academics, students, and practitioners can develop theory, practice, pedagogy, and methodology to confront the complexity of contemporary conflicts while expanding opportunities for future research and practice. Contributors to the book are recognized scholars and practitioners in their respective fields. The authors' take a holistic approach to the study, analysis, and resolution of conflict at the personal, interpersonal, societal and cultural levels. The book is a retrospective of the Mauro Centre and through its content, explores the roots of a major contributor to PACS scholarship. The scholarship represents those who come to the PACS field with a diversity of ideas, approaches, disciplinary roots, and topic areas, which speaks to the complexity, breadth, and depth needed to apply and take account of conflict dynamics and the goal of peace. This book reflects the unique model and approach of the Arthur V. Mauro Centre for Peace and Justice at the University of Manitoba in central Canada: conflict transformation, peacebuilding, and storytelling. Based in the doctoral theses and in celebration of the first decade of Canada's only doctoral program in PACS, this volume, co-edited by three of the graduates of the program and written by colleagues, presents and explores a number of these issues while presenting new and leading research across the broad spectrum of Peace and Conflict Studies.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Peace and Conflict 2016 David Backer, Ravinder Bhavnani, Paul Huth, 2016-06-10 An authoritative source of information on violent conflicts and peacebuilding processes around the world, Peace and Conflict is an annual publication of the University of Maryland's Center for International Development and Conflict Management and the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies (Geneva). The contents of the 2016 edition are divided into three sections: » Global Patterns and Trends provides an overview of recent advances in scholarly research on various aspects of conflict and peace, as well as chapters on armed conflict, violence against civilians, non-state armed actors, democracy and ethnic exclusion, terrorism, defense spending and arms production and procurement, peace agreements, state repression, foreign aid, and the results of the Peace & Conflict Instability Ledger, which ranks the status and progress of more than 160 countries based on their forecasted risk of future instability. » Special Feature spotlights work on measuring micro-level welfare effects of exposure to conflict. » Profiles has been enlarged to survey developments in instances of civil wars, peacekeeping missions, and international criminal justice proceedings that were active around the world during 2014. Frequent visualizations of data in full-color, large-format tables, graphs, and maps bring the analysis to life and amplify crucial developments in real-world events and the latest findings in research. The contributors include many leading scholars in the field from the US and Europe.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Peace Research Peter Wallensteen, 2013-03-01 Comprising essays by Peter Wallensteen, this book presents an overview of the thematic development of peace research, which has become one of the most dynamic and innovative areas of war and conflict studies. Peace research began in the 1950s when centres were formed in the USA and Europe, and today there are research institutes and departments on every continent, with teaching and research programs in most countries, and peace researchers contribute to the development of international studies, development research and security analysis. Prof. Wallensteen has been a witness to much of this since forming the Department of Peace and Conflict Research at Uppsala University in the late 1960s, and this book brings together thirteen of his articles with five new essays in one volume. The book presents articles on such key issues in peace research as the causes of war, conflict data, conflict diplomacy, non-violent sanctions and third-party diplomacy. In this way, it demonstrates how basic research can be conducted in fields often seen as 'unresearchable' and 'too complicated to deal with'. This volume shows that it is a matter of developing definitions, creating valid measures and finding ways of collecting information, recognising that innovations of this kind require supportive research environments. Furthermore, the results are not only useful for the growth of research activity itself, but for finding ways of dealing with actual conflicts. Thus, attention is also paid here to conflict prevention, peace agreements, sanctions and third-party activity for preventing and ending armed conflict, and building a lasting post-war peace. This book will be of great interest to all students of peace studies, conflict resolution, war and conflict studies, development studies and IR/security studies in general.

phd in peace and conflict studies: Routledge Handbook of Peacebuilding and Ethnic Conflict Jessica Senehi, Imani Michelle Scott, Sean Byrne, Thomas G. Matyók, 2022-08-22 This handbook offers a comprehensive analysis of peacebuilding in ethnic conflicts, with attention to theory, peacebuilder roles, making sense of the past and shaping the future, as well as case studies and approaches. Comprising 28 chapters that present key insights on peacebuilding in ethnic conflicts, the volume has implications for teaching and training, as well as for practice and policy. The handbook is divided into four thematic parts. Part 1 focuses on critical dimensions of ethnic conflicts, including root causes, gender, external involvements, emancipatory peacebuilding, hatred as a public health issue, environmental issues, American nationalism, and the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic. Part 2 focuses on peacebuilders' roles, including Indigenous peacemaking, nonviolent accompaniment, peace leadership in the military, interreligious peacebuilders, local women, and young people. Part 3 addresses the past and shaping of the future, including a discussion of public memory, heritage rights and monuments, refugees, trauma and memory, aggregated trauma in the African-American community, exhumations after genocide, and a healing-centered approach to conflict. Part 4 presents case studies on Sri Lanka's postwar reconciliation process, peacebuilding in Mindanao, the transformative peace negotiation in Aceh and Bougainville, external economic aid for peacebuilding in Northern Ireland, Indigenous and local peacemaking, and a continuum of peacebuilding focal points. The handbook offers perspectives on the breadth and significance of peacebuilding work in ethnic conflicts throughout the world. This volume will be of much interest to students of peacebuilding, ethnic conflict, security studies, and international relations.
